Recording sites are biased toward superficial layers medially, and what that does to the mediolateral results